WACHUSETT MOUNTAIN STATE RESERVATION
Police Rules and Regulations
- - - - -

The Wachusett Mountain State Reservation Commission, by the act creating it, has authority to appoint officers to protect and maintain said Reservation, but said act confers no general police jurisdiction. The officers appointed under said act also receive an appointment as police officers of the town of Princeton, and arrests, if made, will be made by virtue of said last appointment.

The powers and duties of police officers are governed by both Common and Statute Law. A full and exhaustive enumeration of all such duties and powers is unnecessary, and will not be attempted here.

The following is intended to anticipate sufficiently the occasions under which police officers in charge of Wachusett Mountain State Reservation may be called upon to act.

Rule 1.

Duties of Superintendent.

The park superintendent shall devote as much of his time as necessary to police duty and the superintendence of the police department, and shall see that the laws of the State and the rules and regulations of the Commission for the government and use of the Reservation are observed and enforced, shall transmit to the members of the police force all orders of the Commission relating to discharge of police duty, and shall keep a suitable record of the doings of said police force, of all arrests and the disposition of offenders.

Rule 2.

Duties of Police Force.

These officers shall especially enforce the rules and regulations for the use and government of said Reservation, and the Fish and Game Laws of this Commonwealth within and upon said Reservation.

See Appendices A and B.

Rule 3
Report of Accidents.

Police officers shall make full reports of all accidents and injuries to persons or property which come to their notice. When it is alleged that an injury to person or property has been caused by defects or obstructions in the Reservation roads, they will at once obtain all information of value in determining the cause of injury to ascertain whether the Commonwealth is liable. They will collect the names and addresses of all persons who saw the accident or know particularly concerning it.

Rule 4.

Reports of such cases will be immediately forwarded to the Secretary of the Board by the Superintendent.

Rule 5.
Of Arrests.

1. Felonies. It is the duties of a police officers to immediately arrest without a warrant a person who commits a felony in his presence.

2. Also, may without a warrant, arrest a person whom he has reasonable grounds to suspect of having committed a felony, whether in his presence or not, for the purpose of securing him to answer to a complaint for such offence, and may detain him a reasonable time for that purpose; but he cannot without a warrant arrest a person for a past offence not a felony.

Note A. A felony is any crime punishable by death or imprisonment in States Prison.

Note B. A misdemeanor is any offence that does not amount to a felony.

What is reasonable grounds for suspicion depends on the particular facts in each case. It may depend upon what the officer himself observes or knows, or upon what others tell him, but in all cases the grounds must be reasonable.

Even when one person directly charges another with the felony, the officer is not protected in making an arrest unless the charge is reasonable, and the officer believes the person arrested to be guilty.

3. If an officer immediately pursues a felon, or one reasonably suspected, he should follow him wherever he may go. If he takes refuge in any house or building, the officer stating his office and object and demanding admission, and being refused or there being no one to whom he can make such demand, may force outer doors or windows, enter and arrest. Having obtained entrance in this or other manner, he may forcibly open an inner door to make arrest.

Note. Forcibly opening an outer door is generally a violent and dangerous proceeding, and should never be resorted to except in extreme cases, and when an immediate arrest is necessary.

4. No more force shall be used than necessary for safe custody or for overcoming resistance of prisoners. Nor shall he be struck except in self-defence. There shall be no abuse of prisoners by word or act.

5. Officers may, if necessary to effect arrest, demand aid in the name of the Commonwealth of any person present.

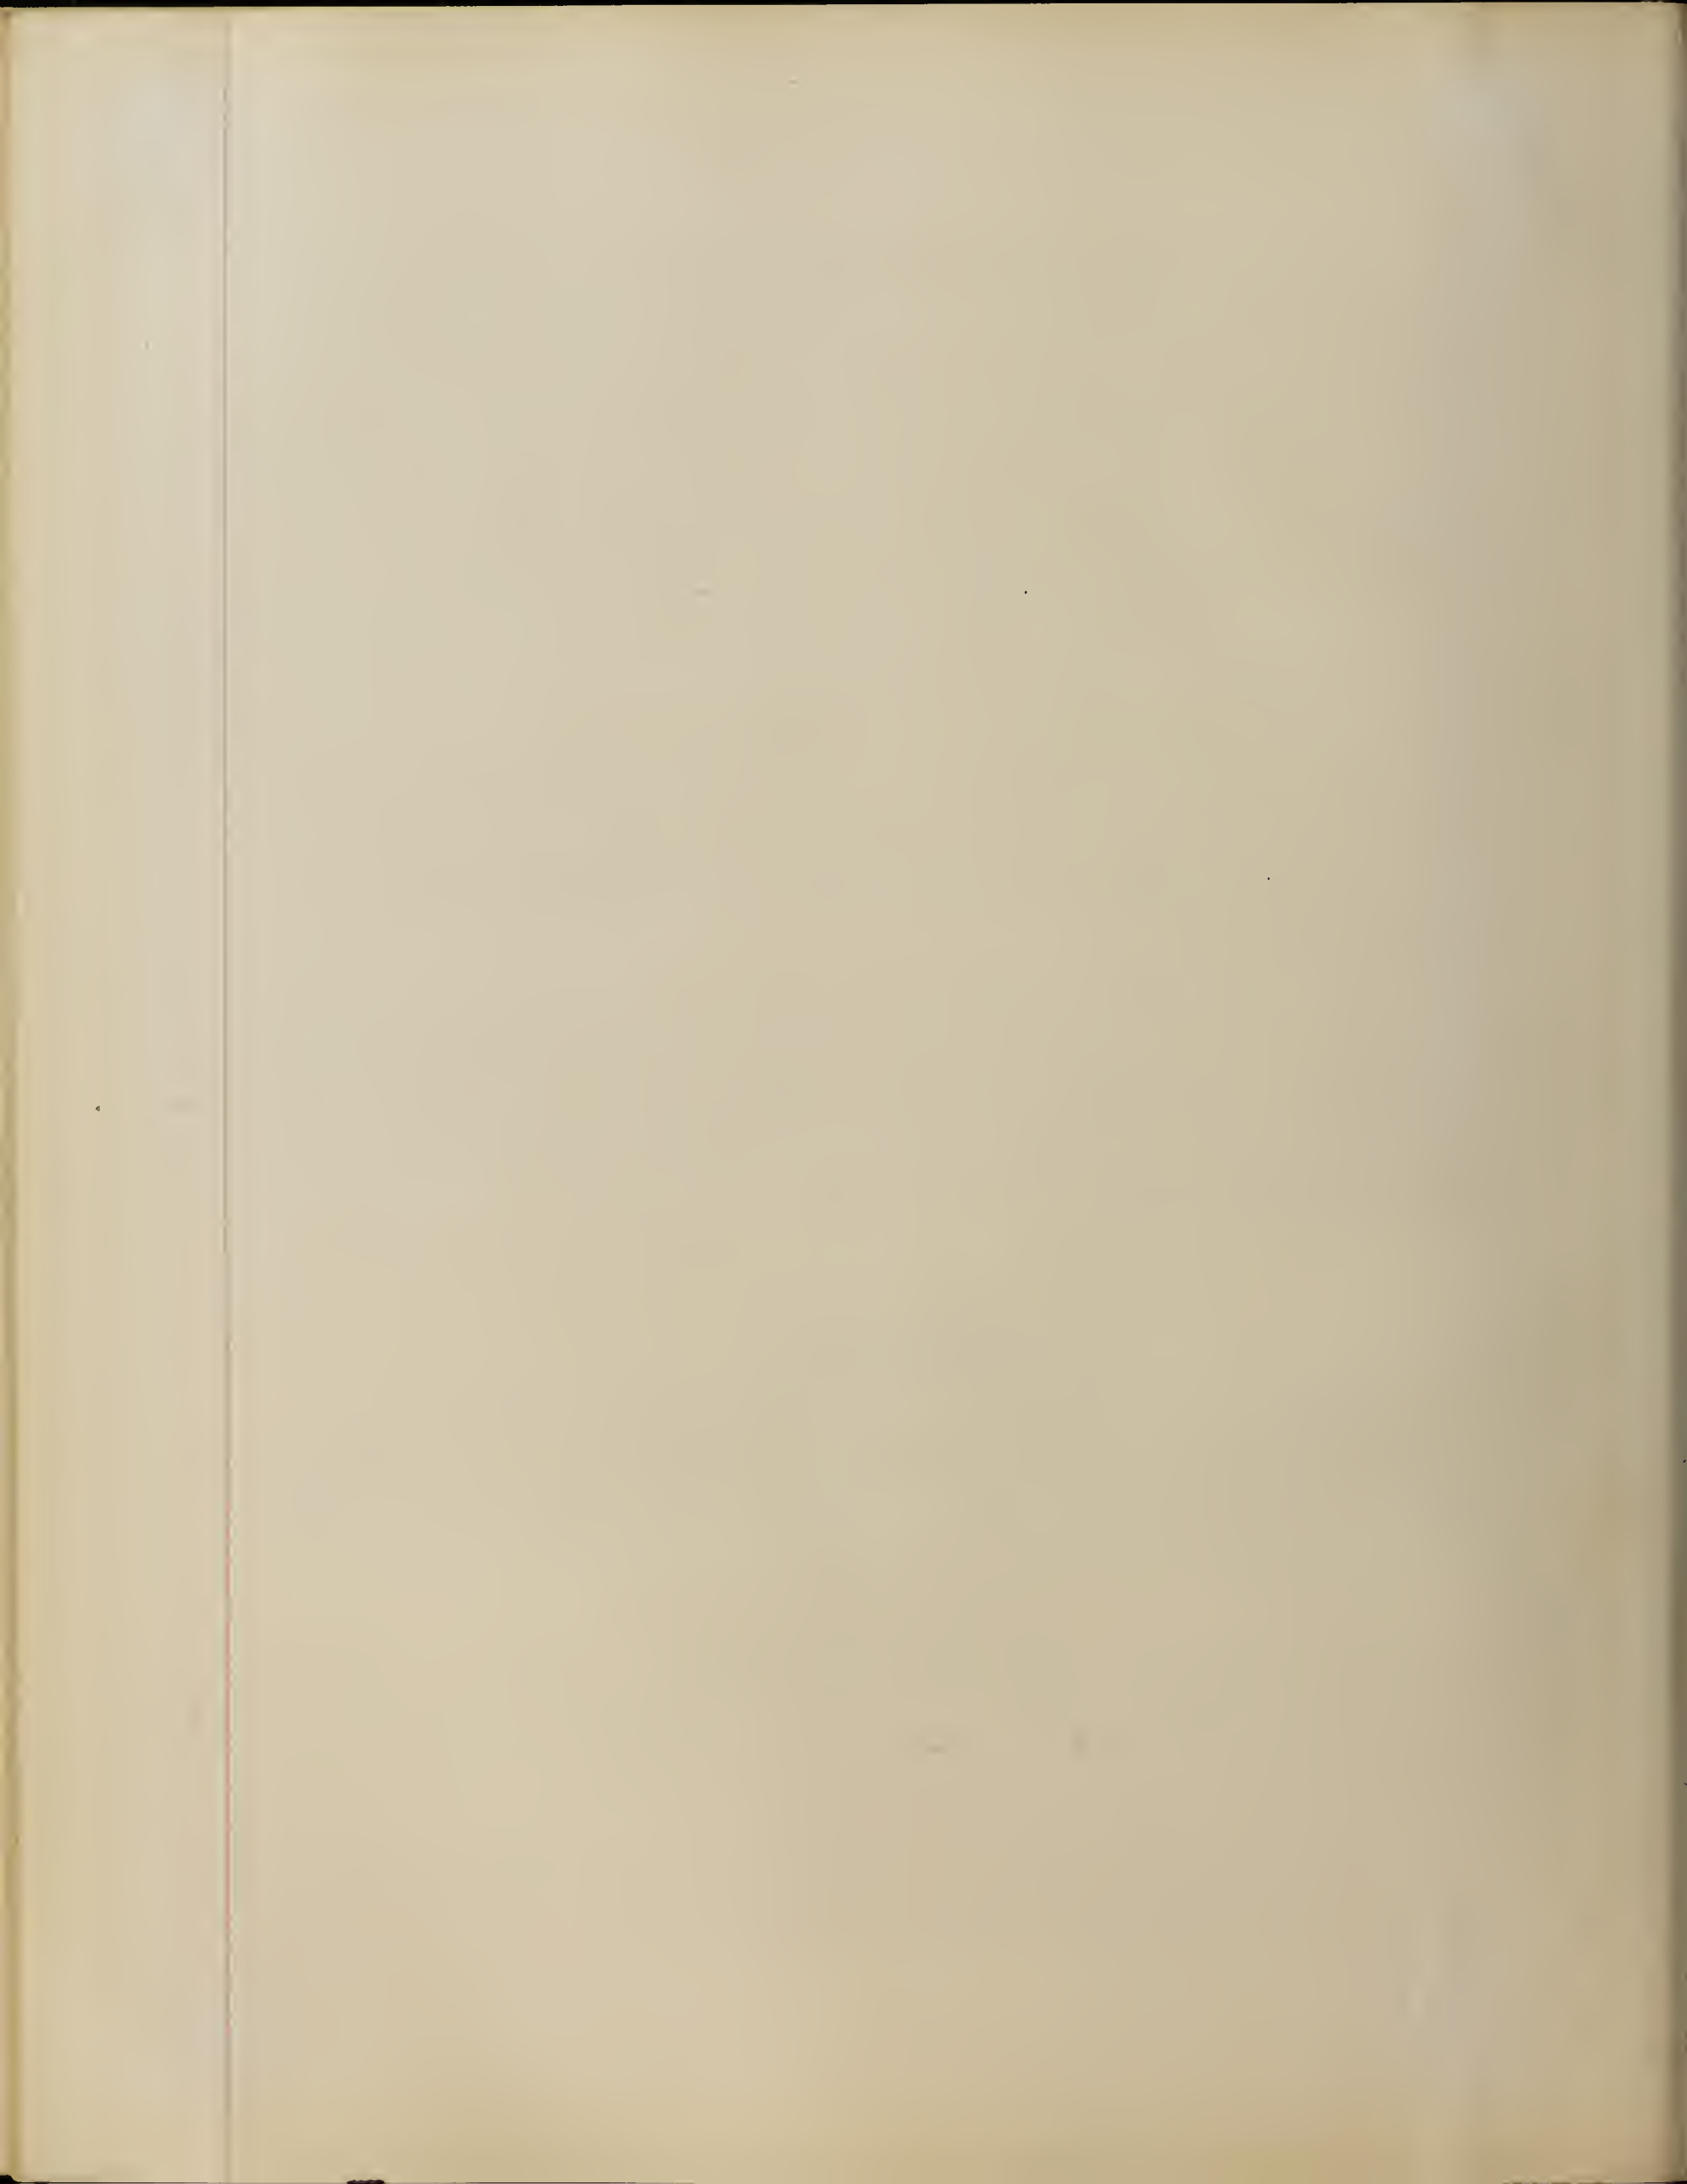

6. When any person charges another with crime and insists that the person so-charged shall be taken in custody, the officer shall require the accuser, if unknown to him, or if there is any other sufficient reason for it, to go with him until record of such taking into custody shall be made upon the books of the Reservation.

Rule 6. Misdemeanors.

At common law a police officer who is also a statutory constable may arrest without a warrant a person who, in his presence, commits any misdemeanor amounting to a breach of the peace, and detain him until he can be brought before a court or magistrate.

Rule 7. Insane Persons.

A police officer appears to have no greater authority than a private person to arrest insane persons without a warrant. It seems that any person may take into custody an insane person if his going at large would be dangerous to himself or others, and detain him for a reasonable time until proper legal proceedings can be had to commit him to an asylum. Police officers, however, should act only in cases of necessity.

Rule 8.

Justices of the peace may order arrest without warrant.

Justices of the peace may upon view of an affray, riot, assault or battery, without warrant, command assistance of every sheriff, deputy-sheriff, and constable and of all other persons present, for suppressing the same, and for arresting all concerned therein as provided in Chap. 211 and 212. (Pub. Stats. Chap. 155, Sec. 1.)

Rule 9.

Service of Criminal Warrant.

These police officers may serve any criminal warrant properly issued by any magistrate in the state, if directed to be served "by any police officer of the town of Princeton," and may carry prisoners to the place where the process is returnable.

The officer should see

- a. Whether warrant is issued by magistrate having jurisdiction of the case.
- b. Whether he is authorized to execute it.
- c. What his powers are under it.

Rule 10.

1. These officers shall enforce the "Rules and Regulations for the government and use of Wachusett Mountain State Reservation."

(See Appendix A as to said Rules and Regulations.)

2. Also shall enforce the Fish and Game Laws of this Commonwealth. (See Appendix B. as to said Game Laws.)

3. By-Laws, as to, - (See Appendix C.)

Rule 11.

Arrest in Night Time.

A police officer may arrest persons found in a street, highway, or other public place in the night time, committing any offence or disorder mentioned in Sec. 1-34. (Pub. Stats. Chap. 207) of which the most important to be mentioned here are the following: Fornication; distribution or dealing in, or having in possession, obscene literature, pictures or figures; profane cursing or swearing by one who has reached the age of discretion; disturbing people met for the worship of God; peddling, gaming, and doing certain other things-(See Sec.22, Chap.207, Pub. Stats.)-during religious camp or field meetings within one mile thereof;wilfully disturbing a school or other assembly met for lawful purpose; being rogues and vagabonds; persons who use any juggling or unlawful games or plays, common pipers and fiddlers, stubborn children, runaways, common drunkards, common nightwalkers both male and female, pilferers, lewd, wanton, and lascivious persons in speach or behavior, common railers and brawlers, persons who neglect their calling or employment, mis-spend what they earn, and do not provide for themselves or for the support of their families, and all other idle and disorderly persons, including therein those persons who neglect all lawful business and habitually mis-spend their time by frequenting houses of ill-fame, gambling-houses or tippling-shops.

Note. See Pub. Stats. Chap. 207, Sec. 1-34 for various offences not mentioned here in above list because not likely to occur in public places in night time, or because they are felonies, or other offences for which arrest may be made without a warrant independent of Sec. 34 at any time of day.

Meme. Chap. 207, Sec. 34 Pub. Stats. is as follows:-
" A person found in a street, highway, or other public place, in the night time, committing any offence or disorder before mentioned in this chapter, may be apprehended by a sheriff, deputy-sheriff, constable, or watchman, or by any other person by order of a magistrate, or either of said officers, and kept in custody in a convenient place not more than twenty-four hours, Sunday excepted; at or before the expiration of which time, he shall be brought before a trial justice, or police, district or municipal court, and proceeded against in the manner directed in the preceding section, or discharged as such justice or court shall determine."

Note. There should or might be substituted for the above words,"in the manner directed in the preceding section,"the words,"in the manner directed by law," the "preceding section", containing no direction for this proceeding.

Vagrants.

" All idle persons who have no visible means of support live without lawful employment; all persons wandering abroad and visiting tippling-shops, or houses of ill-fame, or lodging in groceries, out-houses, market-places, sheds, barns or in the open air, and not giving a good account of themselves; all persons wandering abroad and begging, or who go about from door to door, or place themselves in the street, highways, passages or other public-places, to beg or receive alms, and not coming within the description of tramps, as contained in section thirty-eight, shall be deemed vagrants", and police officers shall without a warrant, arrest any such person, on the request of any person, or upon their own information or belief. (Pub. Stats. Chap. 207, Sec. 42, 45.)

Note 1. The general rule is that an officer can not arrest, without a warrant, for any misdemeanor that is not committed in his presence. There are, however, some few exceptions. He may arrest tramps, on view or information for certain misdemeanors, as well as for the offence of being tramps. Also he may arrest vagrants on the request of any person, or on his own information or belief.

(See Pub. Stats. Chap 207, Sec. 38, 40, 41, 42, 43.)

2. It is also to be noted that an officer may arrest without a warrant for an assault and battery committed out of his presence if a wound were given which he has reasonable ground to suppose may end in felony.

3. Arrests for felony, or on reasonable suspicion of felony, may be made at any time. But arrests for misdemeanors, with very few exceptions, (see last section), must be made immediately upon view of the misdemeanor. Immediately does not necessarily mean during the continuance of the misdemeanor, as the offender may stop before the officer can get to him, or may run; in general it means as soon as possible upon fresh and continued pursuit, or where the offence and the arrests are all parts of the same transaction.

Prisoners, their rights, etc.
Duties of Officers.

Every person arrested has a right to know from the officer who arrests or claims to detain him, the true ground of arrest; and an officer who refuses to answer or answers untruly, a question relating to such arrest, or assigns an untrue reason, or neglects on request, to exhibit to the person arrested or any person acting in his behalf, the precept by which arrest is made, is punishable by fine or imprisonment.
(Pub. Stats. Chap. 200, Sec. 1)

Officers to Keep Records of Arrests.

Each officer shall at all times have with him a book, in which he shall enter the names of the persons arrested by him, with such particulars as may be important on the trial of the case.

Every person arrested shall be taken at once, or as soon as may be, to court, or if not so taken, shall be taken at once to the place used from time to time as a station house, or place of detention used for the purpose of a station-house, where shall be entered a record of such arrest, and if not taken directly to court, the prisoner shall be properly searched, and if anything is taken for safe keeping, the same shall be labelled, and entered upon the record. After being searched prisoners shall be kept in safe custody in cells or otherwise, and all prisoners shall be made as comfortable as possible.

Persons in custody, with or without warrant, must, if practicable, be taken before court at its next sitting, unless properly admitted to bail.

Prisoners shall have proper facilities for notifying friends or a bail commissioner, but without expense to the department, nor shall any fee be taken for such service.

The police shall not recommend the employment of any person as attorney or counsel, or suggest or name any lawyer or other person to a prisoner, with view to his defence at any time after arrest.

Prisoners Unconscious, Ill,
Or suffering from Serious Wounds or Injuries.

If prisoner is unconscious, officer shall at once endeavor to restore consciousness; failing, he shall call for a physician and be guided by him. Such prisoner should not be placed in cell except with sanction of physician.

If seriously wounded or injured, physician shall be called, and if he advise prisoner shall be removed to some suitable place for proper treatment, where the prisoner shall still be in legal custody of the police.

If the wounds or injuries appear to have been made by arresting officer, record shall be made, the circumstances inquired into, that if it appear that unjustifiable violence was used, charges may be preferred against offending officer.

Courts and Evidence.

a. Police concerned in cases before the courts should be punctual in attendance.

b. Shall have cases in which they are complainants properly prepared, witnesses present, and property to be used in evidence suitably arranged for presentation to court.

c. Should observe the utmost attention towards the court at all times, give evidence with accuracy, not suppressing or overstating any circumstance, and when cross-examined, answer with same readiness and civility as in direct examination.

Release of Prisoner Without Bringing Him
Before the Court, or Making Complaint.

The general rule is that after arrest a prisoner shall not be released until brought before the Court.

The only exception to this general rule seems to be that in case of arrest upon suspicion of felony, if the officer finds the suspicion to be groundless, he may release the prisoner without making complaint, or bringing him before the Court.

In all other cases if an officer arrests without a warrant and does not bring the prisoner into Court, and make complaint, he is a trespasser from the beginning and liable in a civil action, but if he can prove that he released him on his request, upon an agreement, express or implied, that the prisoner would not afterwards bring suit, he has a good defence to such action.

It being a dangerous thing to release a prisoner at his request, agreements made by persons restrained of their liberty being looked upon with suspicion, no prisoner shall after arrest be released until properly bailed or brought before the Court, unless he shall sign a statement in writing (preferably written by himself), that he is released upon his own request, that he will not afterwards bring suit, and that the agreement is not made under duress.
